Proposed Change:	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Replace the word "trailer" with "modular building" in FIMS and in its accompanying documentation. 2. Revise the definition to include all manufactured buildings built to withstand relocation in whole or in part. Modular buildings would include manufactured trailers, sheds, shacks, storage modules, and utility buildings permanently affixed to the ground. 3. Rephrase the FIMS User's Guide Appendix G, Section B to read: Indicators of permanence may include one or more of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> — Permanent utility connection(s) — Attachment to the ground in such a way that does not facilitate quick or easy relocation would require destructive methods
Justification:	Extra structural reinforcement makes trailers portable, whether or not the asset has axles. All manufactured buildings share this characteristic. This change acknowledges that other kinds of buildings besides trailers may exist as personal or real property during their lifecycles.
